SUNDAY AND SUNDAY LAW

A Sermon Launched Against the Sabbath Besecrators.

Rev. Dr. Wilson Explains Why the Sabbat Law Was Left Out of the Constitution-Insolent Dictation by Foroign Immigrants. Rev. Dr. David Wilson at the Ninth-street Mothodist Protestant church last night proached from the text in thirteenth and fourteenth verseas of the diffy-eighth chapter of Isalah on "The Sabbath and Sabbath Lawa." The prophet Isalah, the mest etherial and postical of the Jewish prophets, was engaged in the almost hopeless task of bringing back the chosen people from the sin into which they had fallen to the habit of worshiping the true God both in spirit and in form. He consequently effered rewards and held out threats to accomplish his purpose. In the text his promises of reward were tempting his threats of wee tremendous. Upon the words of these threats and these promises Dr. Wilson built up an interesting, philosophical Rev. Dr. David Wilson at the Ninth-street Wilson built up an interesting, philosophical and able discourse. "To ask," said he, "the origin of sabbatarian laws would be as profitsole as to inquire the origin of all law. What were the questions presenting themselves to the mind of Livingston in searching for the hidden sources of the Nile? Wore they as important as the questions that undoubtedly presented themselves to him and the others of this ventions that evid between the presented themselves to him and the others of the relations that exist between God and man? The substic law is one whose interest is of daily recurrence. It is like those pyramids on the edge of the desert, forever challenging the attention of mankind. It was the first law established, and may stand out as the original of all the commandments. That it antedates all other commands is proven by the prominent manner in which it is presented in the decalogue. The language of the ten commandments shows that it was not an institution of Moses, but one far older than the exodus. It reach. His appearance and professions greatly aided him in such operations. The first traces found of him in this neighborhood are in Alexandria, where ever three weeks ago a man angold and plated, at it is presented in the decalogue. The language of the ten commandments shows that it was not an institution of Moses, but one far older than the exodus. It is clearly proved in hely writ that it was intended for all times and all people, not for one race and one period. The substite law was not announced for the first time on Mount Sinai, but was reconnectated. No institution has been oftener or more foreloby promutgated than the sabbath. It is stamped in the very conomy of nature. Rest is impressed upon all being as a part of the constitution of being. Its announcement on Sinai exhibits a feature Before removing to our new store, No. 1815 and the constitution of being. Its amount on Sinai exhibits a feature different from all the other commands of the decologue. It is two-fold in its form, commanding what is done and forbidding what should not be done. The prophets of the Helmannian commanding what is done and forbidding ginia avenue, one on D street and two o Sixth street. He has passed at some of these houses, it is stated, under the name of Howard, and at others under the name of Harrington. Harris is about five feet six inches in height, twenty-eight years of age, and; wore a black moustache until Saturday, when he appeared clean shaven. Since his arryal in this city he has taken part brews, in commenting upon the captivities of the Jews, always insisted that their national troubles came upon them be-cause of their violating the command with regard to the subbatic law. The preacher, therefore, argued that like troubles will come Since his arryal in this city he has taken part in a number of street prayer-meetings, chiefly in South Washington. He had with him when arrested yesterday a certificate of license to preach, dated 1874, stating that he was a member of "Union" Raptist church, the location of which was not named, and a certificate of ordination to preach the gospel, dated May 24, 1878. Both of them were made out in the name of Henry James Harris and attested to by church officers in Richmond, Va., and Albemarie county, Va., upon other nations for the like violations of the divine command. The subbatic law is not an arbitrary one, not a mere commenced reg-ulation, but an expensed of divine character. God designed that man's work should be grad-nated after his own. He rested from his work on the seventh day, therefore should man. The importance of the observance of the sub-bath in a christian nation, and what consti-tutes its violation, were next dwelt on.
